Y Is For Yellowhammer is another book in the Discover America State By State Alphabet Series. This one is written by Carol Crane and illustrated by Ted Burn. The editors suggest an age range of 4-8. This surprises me, because I think older readers will also enjoy it. Perhaps the greatest satisfaction will come from an adult reading it to a youngster, or vice versa! In this book, a "yellowhammer" is a flicker, a type of woodpecker. Author Crane ties this bird into the history of the state, along with Rosa Parks, the boll weevil, and Helen Keller. Like other books in this series, this one is bound to ignore one or two of your favorite people, places, or actions. But there are only 26 letters in the alphabet! This book would make a nice gift.

I just purchased this book intending it for my grandchildren. However, I love it. I lived in Alabama all my life and there were tidbits that I didn't know. Beautifully illustrated and interesting information. Both of my children live in other states now and I will send each of them a copy of the Alabama book.

This gave us a lot of great jumping off points for our study of Alabama. Grabbed my kids interest and the illustrations were awesome. We have used the Alaska book too. I wish we could afford the set.

Read this book to my 1st grader for a school book report and we learned a lot of interesting facts about Alabama. Definitely a great read!

We have read this to my 4 year old daughter - she loves to point out the letters and we get to tell her what the letters mean.

I think this a very nice book, because in addition to teaching the ABC's, it also teaches about several state landmarks.

Great children's alphabet book with informative stories about the state's history.

Not really for small children and didn't seem well researched.
